It's sometimes a bit hard to read what Cato puts her protagonist through in the name of story, but I'm still hooked. The stone from out the sling is for the waves a thing; Hate's arrow of the idle wind is. If you've read Davis's short fiction sometimes one-sentence shortyou'll recognize the fastidious attention to detail, the deep respect of subject, the unbounded curiosity, and trips down unexpected corridors of imagination. However, the absence of only one factor will result in destruction. Nous ne capitulerons pas devant des barbares incultes incapables de produire chez eux ne serait ce que la pitance.
